Main Truth

In the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus taught what it means to live as one of His disciples.

Background

The Sermon on the Mount likely presents a compilation of truth Jesus preached all over Galilee and nearby (Matt. 4:23-25). Some scholars refer to the book of Matthew as the discipleship manual of the first century, teaching Christians how to reach the lost with the gospel and teaching them to make more disciples.

Outline and Specific Truths

Disciples are salt and light (Matt. 5:13-16).

Disciples obey for God's glory, not their own (Matt. 6:1-4).

Disciples live purposefully (Matt. 7:19-24).

Word Study: Discipleship

The word discipleship does not appear in the Bible, but the word disciple appears about 275 times, depending on which English translation you are using. From the start of Jesus' ministry His followers were known by the Jewish customary term disciple. As the gospel spread from Jerusalem outward, disciples were first called Christians in Antioch as a term of derision (Acts 11:25-26), but they adopted the term Christian with joy. Disciple and Christian are synonyms. Disciples are not super-Christians, or of a higher order. Based on Jesus' Great Commission (Matt. 28:18-20), our definition of discipleship is:

Discipleship is intentionally building relationships with lost people with the intent of bringing them to salvation in Christ and teaching them to do the same.
